Debtor

Chapter 7
Case No. 03-44906-HJB

MEMORANDUM OF DECISION

Before this Court is a “Motion to Proceed In Forma Pauperis” filed by Robert White, a creditor in this case. Although rulings on such motions are typically informed by a limited and short history of prior proceedings, the appropriate disposition of this motion requires its review in proper extended context.

I. BACKGROUND

CK Liquidation Corporation, formerly known as Cadkey Corporation (the “Debtor”), filed a voluntary petition under Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code, see 11 U.S.C. § 101, et. seq., on August 22, 2003. The Debtor, a manufacturer and distributor of software used in the construction industry, filed the Chapter 11 case with the goal of selling its assets as a going concern in order to maximize its value and retain its employees.

On August 29, 2003, the Debtor filed a motion seeking leave to sell its assets free and clear of all liens, claims, encumbrances and other interests (the "Sale Motion"). The Debtor also requested pre-approval of certain bidding procedures (the "Proposed Bidding Procedures") relative to the sale. A hearing on the Proposed Bidding Procedures was scheduled for September 9, 2003.

On September 4, 2003, the United States trustee filed notice of her appointment of an Unsecured Creditors Committee. That Creditors Committee, comprised of four (4) members, included Nded, Inc. of Boise City, Idaho. Nded, Inc. was represented on the Creditors Committee by its President, Robert White ("White").

On September 8, 2003, Microcontrol Systems, Inc. (a secured creditor), Harold Bowers (the largest unsecured creditor) and the Creditors Committee each filed an objection to the Proposed Bidding Procedures. On that date, White also filed an objection to the Proposed Bidding Procedures. In that objection, which was filed on White's behalf by an attorney well experienced in bankruptcy law, White represented that he was a creditor of the estate in his individual capacity.

White's objections were similar to the other three objections – complaining, inter alia, that the terms of the proposed sale were not in the best interest of creditors and that immediate sale of the assets was not warranted or necessary at that time. White did not disclose in his objection that he was trying to establish an investment group so that he could bid to purchase the assets himself.¹

On September 12, 2003, this Court issued an order establishing the bidding procedures for the sale, sustaining in part and overruling in part, the various objections. That order also set the sale hearing for October 20, 2003.

On October 9, 2003, White filed an objection to the proposed sale. He complained that the sale of the assets was “chilled” by ownership claims made by Harold Bowers to certain intellectual property which the Debtor intended to sell. The Creditors Committee was also concerned with the intellectual property issues, and requested that this Court determine the extent of Bowers’ interest prior to the sale. White asked instead for a 30-60 day continuance of the sale date. White failed to expressly indicate that he was preparing a sale bid himself. Attached, however, to White’s objection were emails sent to the Debtor’s dealers asking for revenue projections that White could employ relative to his “business plan” and “joint venture.”

The problems associated with the Bowers ownership claims were ultimately resolved for the purpose of the sale hearing.² On November 6, 2003, after an

² This was not without some difficulty. Bowers filed a motion with the District Court to withdraw the reference of the bankruptcy case to the District Court. The District Court (Gorton, J.) temporarily withdrew the reference long enough for Bowers, the Debtor and the Creditors Committee to come to an agreement relative to amended sale procedures. Pursuant to those procedures, the Bowers ownership claim was to have been left open until after the winning bidder was announced. However, after further extensive negotiation between the parties, Bowers agreed to accept $750,000.00 from the winning bidder, Kubotek Corporation, in addition to any dividend on his claim against the bankruptcy estate, and release Kubotek Corporation and others from all of the ownership claims. But after the sale, Bowers initially declined to sign the settlement documentation. Then, after complying, receiving the $750,000.00 payment and releasing Kubotek Corporation from any claims, Bowers disavowed the settlement, maintaining that he (and this Court) had been defrauded by counsel for the Debtor and counsel for the Creditors Committee as to the dividend that unsecured creditors could expect on their claims. He filed a motion asking that the Sale Order be vacated. After a two-day trial, this Court determined that Bowers’ allegations of fraud were frivolous, but has not yet entered an order finally denying the motion, pending requests by various parties for the imposition of monetary sanctions against Bowers under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure evidentiary hearing, this Court approved a sale of the Debtor's assets to Kubotek Corporation,³ for the sum of $2,850,000.00 (the "Sale Order").⁴

On November 14, 2003, White filed a notice of appeal of the Sale Order, pro se,⁵ and elected to have the appeal heard by the District Court. On November 8, 2004, the Sale Order was affirmed by the District Court. White v. Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors (In re Cadkey Corp.), 317 B.R. 19 (D. Mass. 2004) (Gorton, J.). White appealed further to the First Circuit Court of Appeals. On September 12, 2005, the First Circuit affirmed the District Court's order. White then filed a petition for writ of certiorari to the United States Supreme Court, which was denied on February 21, 2006. White has since filed in the United States Supreme Court a motion for rehearing on the denial of his petition.

On February 2, 2004, the Debtor filed a motion to convert its case to one under Chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code. The motion was allowed, without objection, on March 4, 2004. Thereafter, John A. Burdick was appointed as Chapter 7 trustee (the

⁴ The Sale Order also established a $250,000.00 reserve to pay for the costs of defending any appeal filed by White.

⁵ The appeal was filed pro se, notwithstanding the fact that White was then represented by counsel. Indeed, White has filed all subsequent pleadings pro se. His attorney filed a motion to withdraw on March 24, 2004. That motion was allowed, without opposition, on April 8, 2004. Yet, all of the filings by White, pro se, betray the hand of an individual with a significant amount of legal training – a skill which White does not pretend to have.

“Trustee”). On March 19, 2004, the Trustee filed a motion to retain Attorney Michael Goldberg (“Goldberg”), who formerly represented the Creditors Committee, as special counsel to represent the Trustee, inter alia, in connection with the appeal by White. White opposed, arguing that such retention would represent a duplication of effort. On July 6, 2004, White filed a second objection to the Trustee’s motion to employ special counsel. In that objection, White alleged that Goldberg had made false representations to the Court during the sale hearing. On August 17, 2004, this Court overruled White’s objections and granted the Trustee’s motion to retain Goldberg as special counsel.

On August 13, 2004, White filed in this Bankruptcy Court a motion to vacate the Sale Order (the “Motion to Vacate”). In the Motion to Vacate, White again claimed that Goldberg, while acting as counsel for the Creditors Committee, and Attorney James Wilton (“Wilton”), counsel for the Debtor, had each defrauded the Court by misrepresenting both what unsecured creditors could expect to receive from the sale and their expected requests for compensation. As grounds for this contention, White relied on statements Goldberg and Wilton had made at the sale hearing in response to an inquiry from the Court as to the likely impact of the sale upon the expected dividend for creditors.⁶ White claimed that fees owed to Goldberg and White had consumed all of the sale proceeds.

A hearing on the Motion to Vacate was initially set for September 7, 2004. However, White filed a motion seeking an extension of the hearing date, in order to obtain more affordable air fare to travel to Massachusetts. After further review of the Motion to Vacate in connection with White's request for an extension of the hearing date, this Court concluded that – particularly in light of the frivolous nature of the allegations, the costs to all parties of attending a hearing whose outcome was certain and the pendency of the appeal of the underlying Sale Order before the District Court – the Motion to Vacate could be disposed of expeditiously⁷ without the necessity of a hearing. Accordingly, on September 8, 2004, the Motion to Vacate was denied.

Among the various reasons why the Motion to Vacate had no merit, this Court noted that the Trustee's opposition indicated that he held substantial sale proceeds. This Court further emphasized, based on the transcript of the Sale Hearing, that neither Goldberg nor Wilton had ever made any representation as to what dividend would be available for general unsecured creditors – only what would be available for creditors. And the Court commented: "Administrative claimants are also creditors who are entitled to share in the proceeds held by the estate."

On September 10, 2004, White moved for reconsideration of the September 8, 2004 order denying the Motion to Vacate (the "Motion for Reconsideration"). In the Motion for Reconsideration, White altered his allegations of what remained in the estate, but continued to claim that the Court had been defrauded. This time, however, he also inserted additional allegations, including, inter alia, that other creditors had also been defrauded, that “appellate issues” had been “concealed,” that Kubotek Corporation had somehow participated in a fraud, and that Kubotek Corporation had engaged in sale collusion and the sale had been chilled. The Motion for Reconsideration was denied on September 13, 2004. White filed a notice of appeal to the District Court on September 15, 2004. That appeal was dismissed by the District Court (Gorton, J.). White then moved the District Court for reconsideration. Reconsideration was denied. At that point, White decided to forego an appeal to the First Circuit Court of Appeals and sought to file an appeal directly with the United States Supreme Court. The District Court returned the notice of appeal to White as improperly filed.

But White was not done. On October 12, 2004, White filed another motion, this time seeking that interim fees previously awarded to Goldberg and Wilton⁸ be disgorged (the “Motion to Disgorge”). There, he argued that, because this Court commented in its September 8, 2004 order that Goldberg and Wilton were creditors by virtue of their services to the estate, they were in conflict with other creditors for estate funds and therefore no longer “disinterested” persons as required by 11 U.S.C. § 328(c).⁹ This Court was able to immediately dispatch that absurd proposition,¹⁰ but became increasingly concerned about the drain of estate assets occasioned by White's continuing frivolous allegations.¹¹ Accordingly, on October 19, 2004, this Court denied the Motion to Disgorge with the following order (the "Show Cause Order"):

Denied for the reasons stated in the joint opposition to motion to disgorge filed October 18, 2004. The movant is further ordered to appear before this court on November 16, 2004 at 11:30 a.m. in Worcester and show cause why he should not be sanctioned pursuant to Fed.R.Bankr.P. 9011(c)(1)(B), on account of the filing of this frivolous motion.

On October 27, 2004, White filed a response to the Show Cause Order, essentially repeating the frivolous allegations made in the Motion to Disgorge. In addition, on the same day, White filed an appeal to the District Court of denial of the Motion to Disgorge contained in the Show Cause Order. That appeal was subsequently dismissed by the District Court because White failed to pay the filing fee.

On November 15, 2004, the Trustee responded to the Show Cause Order. There, the Trustee complained bitterly of the costs associated with responding to the frivolous pleadings filed by White, and he estimated that those costs approximated $32,000.00. The Trustee requested that any remedies this Court might contemplate such professionals could never be employed, being foreclosed from compensation as soon as they rendered services on behalf of the party for whom their retention had been approved.

¹¹ The estate, by this time, had been forced to deal with an objection to the Proposed Bidding Procedures, an objection to the sale, the appeal of the Sale Order, the Motion to Vacate the Sale Order, the Motion to Reconsider the denial of the Motion to Vacate, the appeal of the denial and failure to reconsider the Motion to Vacate, two objections to the retention of Goldberg as special counsel, and now the Motion to Disgorge. Each of those motions had or would entail substantial costs, draining the assets of the estate and correspondingly reducing any dividend for unsecured creditors.

include a prohibition against White filing any further papers with the Bankruptcy Court and a requirement that White withdraw any pending appeals.

The Show Cause hearing took place on November 19, 2004. Sanctions under Rule 9011 were assessed against White in the amount of $2,500, to be paid to the Trustee (notwithstanding the Trustee's allegations of $32,000.00 already spent in fending off frivolous allegations made by White in various contexts). This Court specifically found that the allegations made in the Motion to Disgorge "were not warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law; that they were presented for an improper purpose, and that is to harass estate functionaries." When White complained that the payment would be difficult in light of his current employment, he was granted sixty (60) days to make the payment. And, because the Court was uncomfortable ordering White not to file any more papers with the Bankruptcy Court (and undoubtedly without jurisdiction to order him to withdraw his appeals), the restraints requested by the Trustee were not imposed.¹² But the Court did warn White that further frivolous allegations would be met by significantly greater sanctions. The sanction of $2,500 (the "Sanctions Order") was due to the Trustee on January 18, 2005.

On November 26, 2004, White appealed the Sanctions Order to the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel for the First Circuit (the "First Circuit BAP"). He did not seek a stay from the First Circuit BAP pending appeal. The First Circuit BAP affirmed the Sanctions

¹² In retrospect, this Court's failure to order White not to file any further papers constituted clear error.

Order on March 11, 2005. White v. Burdick (In re CK Liquidation Corp.), 321 B.R. 355 (1st Cir. BAP 2005). White then sought further review from the First Circuit Court of Appeals, where the matter (No. 05-9004) is still pending.

On March 16, 2005, approximately four (4) months after the issuance of the Sanctions Order and two (2) months after the sanctions were due, the Trustee filed a motion asking that White be held in civil contempt for failure to comply with the Sanctions Order (the "Contempt Motion"). On April 21, 2005, five (5) months after the Sanctions Order, White filed a motion seeking a stay of the Sanctions Order pending appeal to the First Circuit (the "Stay Motion"). In support, White suggested that the estate would not be prejudiced by the delay because it could offset the sanctions against the dividend which he expected to receive on his unsecured claim. White also alleged that he could not afford to pay the sanctions. This Court scheduled both the Contempt Motion and the Stay Motion for evidentiary hearing on May 23, 2005. On May 3, 2005, White responded by seeking a stay from the First Circuit. On May 25, 2005, the First Circuit court denied his request for a stay, without prejudice, granting White leave to file a renewed motion if this Court issued an order of contempt.¹³

After the hearing on May 23, 2005, this Court also denied White's request for a stay of the Sanctions Order. His suggestion that any dividend on his claim be offset against his sanction was not viable for four (4) reasons. First, the actions of White and Harold Bowers had so drained estate assets that this Court could not longer be certain what dividend remained available for unsecured creditors. Second, White was, and still is, a defendant in a voidable preference action brought against him by the Trustee. To the extent that the Court awarded judgment against White and he failed to pay that judgment, White's claim against the estate would not be allowable in any amount. See 11 U.S.C. § 502(d). Third, the kind of accommodation sought by White was inappropriate with respect to an individual otherwise in civil contempt of a court order over an extended period of time. And fourth, a stay pending appeal is only appropriate where there is a likelihood of success on the merits of the appeal.¹⁴ This Court had already found White's arguments frivolous and that finding had been affirmed by the First Circuit BAP.

At the May 23, 2005 hearing this Court also took evidence on White's ability to pay the sanctions. White's testimony in this regard was not in any respect credible. He

¹⁴ It is well settled that, on request of an appellant, a court should grant a stay of the order subject to appeal if:

- (1) there is a likelihood of success on the merits of the appeal;
- (2) the moving party will suffer irreparable harm if a stay is not granted;
- (3) the harm to the moving party if the stay is not granted is greater than the injury to the opposing party if the stay is granted; and
- (4) the public interest would not be adversely affected by the issuance of the stay.

claimed to be unable to pay. Yet, White testified that he worked as a consultant for a law office in California, where he earned the sum of $700 per week. He also testified to an interest in a 200-acre family farm in Oklahoma which he had transferred to his sister for the benefit of their children. Most important, White disclosed that he had title to two automobiles and advised that each had a value of $3,500. Based on that testimony, this Court ruled that White had, at all times, the ability to pay the sanction. Accordingly, this Court issued the following order (the "First Contempt Order") on May 23, 2005 (six months from the date of the Sanctions Order), intended, in part, to permit White time to sell one or more of the vehicles to which he had testified:

It is hereby ORDERED that:

1. White is sanctioned in the additional amount of $1,000.00 on account of said contempt, for a total amount owed of $3,500.00;
2. White shall pay the amount of $3,500.00 to the Trustee on or before June 17, 2005;
3. The hearing on the Contempt Motion is continued to June 28, 2005 at 1:30 p.m. in Worcester, Massachusetts. In the event that, on or before June 28, 2005, the Trustee shall advise the Court that the full payment has been timely received, the said continued hearing shall be canceled. In the event that the Court shall, at the June 28, 2005 hearing, find that White has not timely made the payment in full, the Court may assess additional monetary sanctions or order White, there and then, to surrender to the United States Marshal in this District for incarceration until he shall purge himself of civil contempt. In the event that White shall fail to attend the June 28, 2005 continued hearing, the Court may issue a warrant to secure his attendance at a continued hearing thereof.

On June 27, 2005, the Trustee filed a certificate advising that White had failed to comply with the First Contempt Order. On June 28, 2005, White appeared at the scheduled hearing. White claimed, without credibility, that he could not sell the vehicles. There was no basis to believe that he had made any effort to do. Under the circumstances, his assertions amounted to a refusal. Based on his testimony on May 23, 2005 and June 28, 2005, this Court issued the following order (the "Second Contempt Order") on June 28, 2005:

Robert White is committed to the custody of the United States Marshal for the District of Massachusetts until the earlier of: 1) such time as Robert White shall pay the sum of $3,500.00 to attorney John Burdick, as Chapter 7 trustee of CK Liquidation Corp., or 2) July 12, 2005. If Robert White shall remain in custody of the United States Marshal on July 12, 2005, the United States Marshal shall deliver him to this Court sitting in Worcester, Massachusetts on July 12, 2005 at 2:00 P.M., at which time this Court shall determine what further actions should be taken in respect of this matter, including, without limitation, monetary sanctions and/or continued incarceration.

White was incarcerated by the United States Marshal at the Wyatt Detention Center in Rhode Island.¹⁵

On July 12, 2005, this Court conducted a continued contempt hearing. The sanction had still not been paid. Furthermore, this Court was unconvinced that White had made any attempt whatsoever to liquidate the vehicles. Accordingly, on July 12, 2005, this Court entered the following order (the "Third Contempt Order"), after requesting the Trustee to assist White, if necessary, in selling the vehicles:

¹⁵ On June 29, 2005, White filed a so-called Writ of Habeas Corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 in the District Court (4:05-cv-40104-FDS) (the "Habeas Proceeding"), naming as Respondents this Court, the United States Marshal and the Local Jail in which White was located. On December 29, 2005, the District Court (Saylor, J.) dismissed the Habeas Proceeding on various grounds. On January 3, 2006, White sought reconsideration of that order. Reconsideration was denied on January 6, 2006. On January 12, 2006, White filed an appeal to the First Circuit Court of Appeals, where the matter is now pending.

Robert White remains committed to the custody of the United States Marshal for the District of Massachusetts until the earliest of :1) such time as Robert White shall pay the sum of $3,500.00 to attorney John Burdick, as Chapter 7 trustee of CK Liquidation Corp; or 2) such time as Robert White shall have liquidated in arms-length sales all motor vehicles to which he has title and remitted the proceeds thereof to attorney Burdick as Chapter 7 trustee; or 3) August 9, 2005. If Robert White shall remain in this [sic] custody of the United States Marshal on August 9, 2005, the United States Marshal shall deliver him to this Court sitting in Worcester, Massachusetts on August 9, 2005 at 2:00 p.m., at which time this Court shall determine what further actions should be taken in respect of this matter, including, without limitation, monetary sanctions and/or continued incarceration.

On August 9, 2005, the Court conducted a further contempt hearing. The assertions made by the parties were no different. At this point, in an attempt to break the stalemate, the Court offered White an alternative. White would be released from incarceration if he would convey the automobiles to the Trustee so that the Trustee could liquidate them. White accepted that alternative, executing hand-drawn bills of sale. White was released from incarceration, and the Court continued the contempt hearing until January 31, 2006 to enable the Trustee to sell the vehicles (the "Fourth Contempt Order").

On January 31, 2006, the contempt hearing was reconvened. The Trustee reported his efforts to sell the vehicles. It is sufficient here to note only that those efforts by the Trustee were substantially below those expected of an estate functionary.¹⁶ Counsel for the Trustee offered to share the blame. The Court accepted the offer and issued an order: 1) purging White of contempt and 2) ordering that each of the fee applications of the Trustee and Counsel for the Trustee would be reduced by

50% of the sanction originally ordered to be paid by White (the "Order Purging Contempt").

That should have ended the matter. It did not. On February 13, 2006, White filed an appeal to the District Court of all of the orders issued by the Court in connection with its original contempt order (the First Contempt Order of May 23, 2005, the Second Contempt Order of June 28, 2005, the Third Contempt Order of July 12, 2005, the Fourth Contempt Order of August 9, 2005 and the Order Purging Contempt of February 7, 2006).¹⁷ Of course, that appeal entails a filing fee and other costs – which brings this Court to the matter now before it. White asks this Court for leave to permit him to proceed in the District Court appeal in forma pauperis. In support, he submits a form affidavit containing various financial information, including income, expenses and assets. White alleges that his average monthly income for the past 12 months and expected in the month following execution of the affidavit is in the amount of $1,605.00 and that his expenses total $1,195.00.¹⁸ And included in his list of assets are the vehicles which were the subject of the contempt orders, this time valued at "$500" for one and "$3,000-2000" for the other.

¹⁷ Since the filing of that appeal and the instant motion, White has filed yet another motion in this Court asking the Court to vacate the November 6, 2003 Sale Order.

¹⁸ Expenses listed for his domestic partner add another $317.00. Her monthly income is listed at $50.00.

II. DISCUSSION

The Bankruptcy Appellate Panel for the First Circuit has recently held that a qualified debtor's appellate filing fees may be waived pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915.¹⁹

¹⁹ Section 1915 provides, in relevant part:

- (a) (1) . . . any court of the United States may authorize the commencement, prosecution or defense of any suit, action or proceeding, civil or criminal, or appeal therein, without prepayment of fees or security therefor, by a person who submits an affidavit . . . that the person is unable to pay such fees or give security therefor. Such affidavit shall state the nature of the action, defense or appeal and affiant's belief that the person is entitled to redress.
(3) An appeal may not be taken in forma pauperis if the trial court certifies in writing that it is not taken in good faith.
- (c) Upon the filing of an affidavit in accordance with subsection[] (a) . . . , the court may direct payment by the United States of the expenses of (1) printing the record on appeal in any civil or criminal case, if such printing is required by the appellate court; (2) preparing a transcript of proceedings before a United States magistrate judge in any civil or criminal case, if such transcript is required by the district court, in the case of proceedings conducted under section 636(b) of this title or under section 3401(b) of title 18, United States Code; and (3) printing the record on appeal if such printing is required by the appellate court, in the case of proceedings conducted pursuant to section 636(c) of this title. Such expenses shall be paid when authorized by the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts.

- (e)
(2) Notwithstanding any filing fee, or any portion thereof, that may have been paid, the court shall dismiss the case at any time if the court determines that –
 - (A) the allegation of poverty is untrue; or
 - (B) the action or appeal –
 - (i) is frivolous or malicious;

See Heghmann v. Indorf, et al. (In re Heghmann), 324 B.R. 415 (2005). Based on its reading of § 1915, the Heghmann Panel went on to note:

28 U.S.C. § 1915 provides that a petition to proceed in forma pauperis is granted or denied at the discretion of the court. However, the court's discretion is limited to determinations of poverty and objective good faith. Kinney v. Plymouth Rock Squab Co., 236 U.S. 43, 46, 35 S.Ct. 236, 59 L.Ed. 457 (1915). Good faith is demonstrated when an applicant seeks appellate review of any issue that is not frivolous. Coppedge v. United States, 369 U.S. 438, 445, 82 S.Ct. 917, 8 L.Ed.2d 21 (1962). Thus, a determination as to whether the Debtor's application to proceed in forma pauperis on appeal should be granted turns on two factors: (1) a showing by affidavit that he is unable to pay the filing fees, see Adkins v. E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., 335 U.S. 331, 339-40, 69 S.Ct. 85, 93 L.Ed. 43 (1948), and (2) a showing that the proposed proceedings are not frivolous or malicious, see 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e).

Heghmann at 420.

White's request to appear in forma pauperis satisfies neither factor. First, he is not impoverished. His monthly income ($1,605.00) exceeds his monthly expenses ($1,195.00) by $410.00. But second, and more important, the aforesaid history discloses the frivolous nature of all of White's filings in this Court, inclusive of the present appeal. As a result of those actions, designed by White to punish the estate functionaries for his lost opportunity to purchase the Debtor's assets, the estate's assets will have been greatly drained. When the Court sought to stop his actions by issuing an order of sanctions, White refused to comply, despite the fact that he actually testified to ownership of vehicles whose value was twice the amount of the Sanctions

(ii) fails to state a claim on which relief may be granted; or

(iii) seeks monetary relief against a defendant who is immune from such relief.

The statute is not limited to debtor, as opposed to nondebtor, appellants.

Order. Indeed, even in the current affidavit, he refers to his ownership of those vehicles and claims that their total combined value is at least $2,500.00.

The various forms of relief sought by White have been repeatedly denied by this Court, and its findings and rulings, when reached, have been affirmed by the District Court, the First Circuit Bankruptcy Appellate Panel and the First Circuit Court of Appeals. The Supreme Court has been approached to review the matter and has declined. Yet, White persists in his efforts, even to the point of filing, within the past several days, yet another motion in this Court to vacate the 2003 Sale Order.

It is clear that the various forms of relief requested by White have long ago moved beyond frivolous to the malicious and vexatious. Against this backdrop, White asks the taxpayers of the United States of America to subsidize his newest appellate venture. There is no justification for an answer other than a resounding "no."

III. CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated above, White's motion for leave to proceed in forma pauperis with his appeal of this Court's First, Second, Third and Fourth Contempt Orders and the Order Purging Contempt is DENIED. Unless all of the applicable appellate filing and other fees have been received by the clerk of this court by April 4, 2006, this Court will dismiss the appeal, pursuant to District Court Local Rule 203.

An order will issue forthwith in conformity with this Memorandum of Decision.
